ARMY OF MERRY MAKERS

THEY HAVE STORMED THE STORES WITH GREENBACKS AND SILVER.

The Battlements of Holiday Goods Have Fallen Before the Constant Cannon-3 ading of Many Well Filled Purses.

Broad street has capitulated. The stores have been stormed with greenbacks and silver. Battlements have been thrown down by the heavy fire from well filled purses. There has been a constant cannonading that kept up far into the right. An invading army of merry-makers occupy the surrendered thoroughfare. For a week past regiments of shoppers have entered from the side streets. Brigades came from Church Hill. The western limits sent squadrors. The fashionable folk came in companies. The suburb resi-dents in detachments. They have marched and countermarcheds Some with the precision of a dress parade. Some with the irregularity of "route" step. Some in heavy marching order with service uniforms. Others in full dress with gold lace and algrettes.

The army needs no drum corps. It is continually in its own way. There is no military precision in the march of the invaders. No need for—

"Keep step! keep step! And march in line. Keep step! keep step! The soldiers rhyme. The step military!

It is a good natured song, though-happy, careless and free-and the merry chink of silver gives impetus to the movements of all.

The army each day invades the Cohen establishment so that there is literally hardly room to turn around in the immense structure. And how the firm ever managed to get so many pretty things together is a mystery not easily solved. There is crowded into the place everything from a paper of hair pins to a black silk dress; from a jumping jack to a monstrous hobby horse, from a gift suitable for an eighteen months old baby a monstrous hobby horse, from a gift suitable for an eighteen months old baby to a present for some old gentleman whose locks are silvery. There is no use to enumerate the articles in the Cohen store unless you wish to read about a page of The Times and I know you haven't time.

What is true of Cohen Company is true of Levy & Davis, Wcodward & Lothrop, Julius Sycle & Son, Julius Meyer & Sons, and Miller & Rhoads. In those six establishments one could buy enough gifts to almost give the world a present, and there is no perplaying questions. and there is no perplexing questions go-ing to arise in your mind as to what is suitable for Bess, Jack, Mary or Tom-Their stocks will suggest a thousand and

One of the prettiest places about Christmas time is a jewelry store, and there the young man whose fancy turns, can be the young man whose takes the young man who seen purchasing some ocautiful creation in gold and silver for his sweetheart. If the young man wishes to make a present of jewelry or gold and silver-ware, he will certainly be able to do so. ware, he will certainly be able to do so, for jewelry establishments in Richmond are very numerous. He would do well to visit James E. Tyler's, C. Lumsden & Son, Spott & Spott, the H. M. Moses Company, Nowlan's, J. M. Chappel at Third and Broad, J. T. Allen & Co. en Main near Fourteenth, Kohler's on Broad near Eighth, and D. Buchanan on Broad heatween, First and Second streets. At all hear Eighth, and Second streets. At all of these first-class establishments pur-chasers of silver and gold ware, precious stones and plate goods will find large and well-selected stocks being sold at mode-well-selected stocks being sold at moderate prices.

There is one present from father to daughter, from husband to wife that is always sincerely appreciated. It is a piano. No home is fully complete without such an instrument, and the mode of payments now in vogue at the music establishments place the plano within the purchasing power of the many who cannot afford to make a full cash payment. M. B. Ramos & Co., Walter payment. M. B. Ramos & Co., Walter D. Moses & Co., Hume, Minor & Co., and the Richmond Music Company have in struments that will gladden any home and those who contemplate purchasing piano, organ or other musical instru-ment should pay those four firms visit. They are substantial men in their line of business.

All of us have friends outside of Richmond to whom we wish to send remembrances. A gift would hardly do, but a Christmas card, tooklets, calendar, book of poems, or some other article that will do service as a remembrance is exactly what is needed. For just such purchasers H. M. Strake and J. W. Randolph & Co. H. M. Strake and J. W. Randolph & Co. have prepared a beautiful array to select from, and if you do not become bewlidered by the many pretty things you see in those establishments, then I am sure you will get exactly what you want. To a boy or girl a volume of standard literature is always an acceptable present, and a volume of Shakespeare, a set of Dickens or Bulwer, is received with appreciation.

To the sister who wishes to give her big brothers a present Constable Brothers. offer alluring attractions. The purchasing of neckwear there will be appreciated by the young men far more than some gift bargained for at an establishmen that does not make a specialty of such goods.

To the husband Fourqurean, Price & Co.'s and Kaufmann & Co.'s are the place. at which he can purchase some present for his wife or mother-in-law. At the former establishment the very best dre goods that are sold in Richmond ca be purchased, and at the latter place, jusbe purchased, and at the latter place, just across the street, one can buy perfect loves of bonnets at moderate prices. Kaufmann & Co. also carry a splendid stock of holiday goods, and which are being sold at low prices.

A dinner or tea set of pretty China would make a most acceptable present to the housewife, and the business man will find it very convenient to drop in at the Richmond China Company's establishment on Main near Tenth, or E. B. Taylor's, further down on the same block. Besides Chinaware there are pretty vases, beautiful bisque figures, graceful plano beautiful bisque figures, graceful plano lamps, glittering glassware and lots of other pretty things that would do for the

To many a citizen the gift of a pair of shoes would be appreciated, and in these merry times one should remember that the poor are always with us. The purchasers of footwear-from the daintest slipper to the heaviest brogan—would do well and save money by paying a visit to Grigg & Cross, No. 415 east Broad; Jacob May & Son, 697 east Broad; Taylor & Brown, on Main near Tenth; J. A pretty decorative table, an easy rocking-chair, a leather arm-chair, a parlor or cleanber set—all of the fine work in a furniture store would do excellently as a Christmas present, and many a heart would be gladdened if such a present was made. Preston Belvin, Habliston Brothers and Haskell & Hatton have splendid stocks from which to select, and some of the pretty conceits are exactly what is needed in many a home.

T. A. Miller, the druggist, at Fifth and Broad streets, carries an excellent stock of holiday goods, and a box of fine eigars, a well-carved pipe or a box of the best tobacco can be purchased there for father, husband or brother.

Few people are aware of the strides, or turns, let us say, in the progress of the bicycle, the swift and silent steed, carrying its master wherever he would go.

There is no side to the bicycle question more prominent than that of its practical use as a time-saver and health-

So whether you wish to ride for profit, or pieasure, or both, get a bicycle and save time and be invigorated.
The question next comes, where to get your bicycle, and the pioneers in the business come first to mind—the Schaaps, on Broad near Sixth street.

A beautiful shop is this, filled with bicycles and everything pertaining to them and necessary to keep them in repair and bright and glittering.
Bicycles first, and then come furnishing goods for gentlemen, with extra beautiful additions for the holiday season.
How can you go wrong, dear feminine reader, especially if you wish an acceptable Christmas gift for father, husband, brother or friend? Go to Schaap's; go see, admire and buy, and thank me for sending you there!

see, admire and buy, and thank me for sending you there!
What would a Christmas be without candy? But such a thing need not be in Richmond, and H. W. Moesta has anticipated the wants of all who will buy good things to cat. He has in stock a full line of fruits, confections and cakes of every description, and while not on Broad street, the stream of buyers find their way rapidly to his place on Main between First and Second.

Of course I know you would not let a Christmas go by without buying a picture. Well, listen while I tell you a little secret. At 213 east Broad street Sol J. Binswanger has a big store just chock full of the paintings and engrav-ings, with frames, easels, placques and fancy articles until I can't begin to tell you about them all. If you have got an hour to spare, go in there.
